Machine Drifts Horribly.

In a few minutes the horse was calmed and Mr. Lorimer collapsed and fell unconscious to the muddy roadway.

"My hat is still in the ring."

NEWS OF MISSOURI

BARRED FROM SELLING MILK.

Superintendent Eckles Needs Protest That School Sales Injure Trade.

Columbia.—Should the milk at the university dairy be sold or thrown away after it has been "separated?" Columbia dairymen argue it should, and C. H. Eckles, superintendent, has decreed no milk is to be sold directly to consumers. During summer the dairy makes ice cream for Columbia stores and also makes and sells butter.

Dairymen contend the university has no right to cut in on their profits and that milk from the champion cows is of such recognized superiority that it would drive them out of business.

The same argument was advanced against the University of Missouriian, printed by the school of journalism. In vain the school of journalism argued its students had to have practical experience. The state legislature put a rider on the appropriations regarding accepting advertising for university publications. Then the University Missouriian incorporated and now sells advertising space to Columbia merchants.

It was also decided to build this over the so-called Shoal Creek route, which is considered one of the most beautiful scenic highways in southwest Missouri. About $30,000 will be spent on the twenty miles included in the section from Neosho to Joplin. It was also decided by the Neosho club to endorse the proposition for the voting of $60,000 worth of good roads bonds in the Neosho special road district. Work on the Joplin-Neosho will start within thirty days.

THE LAST "STRAW"

IN A FALSE POSITION

TWO STATEMENTS BY SCHWAB SEEM CONTRADICTORY.

Declares Steel Tariff Must Not Be Lowered, and Talks of Victory in Market Over His European Competitors.

When Charles M. Schwab returned from a trip to Italy he immediately gave out an interview saying that the tariff on steel cannot be materially lowered without crippling the industry.

Mr. Schwab is president of the Bethlehem Steel corporation and chairman of the board. His company has issued $15,000,000 in common stock and a like amount of preferred stock. The common stock has never paid a dividend and is selling at about 38. The preferred is a seven per cent. stock which never paid seven per cent. and has not paid anything since 1908. It sells around 72.

Mr. Schwab's company is one of the many which "capitalized" the economies of consolidation; that is to say issued watered stock during the era of trust promotion. The $15,000,000 of common stock is mostly representative of that kind of capitalization, and if he means that tariff revision will cripple the iron industry by discouraging that kind of financing he is perfectly right. The American people are not going to revise the tariff with a view of furthering the scheme of high finance or to help anyone pay dividends on water.

But there is a further fact in Mr. Schwab's interview that is highly illuminating. He said he had just returned from Italy, where his company has closed a contract to supply armor plate for the Italian navy. Mr. Schwab's company has no tariff protection in Italy against such great steel-producing countries as England, France, Germany and Belgium, but he can sell steel against them in that country because he offers the Italians good steel at fair prices.

If he can sell steel without tariff protection in Italy he can do it at home.

Publicity for Perkins.

Why should George W. Perkins contribute $15,000 to help Mr. Roosevelt carry the Republican primaries in New York city?

Is it because Mr. Perkins is an ardent believer in the initiative and referendum?

Is it because his confidence in a on the recall of judicial decisions?

Is it because his confidence in a "pure democracy" is such that he is willing to make any financial sacrifice in order that the nation may achieve this goal?

Is it because he believes that Theodore Roosevelt is the only statesman who is wise enough and patriotic enough to be president?

Or is it because Mr. Perkins finds in Mr. Roosevelt the most serviceable weapon for destroying the Sherman anti-trust law?

Mr. Perkins is chairman of the finance committee of the Harvester trust. He is a director of the Steel trust. He is a director of the Standard Oil bank. He was formerly a partner of J. P. Morgan & Co. Mr. Perkins helped collect the life insurance money for the Roosevelt campaign fund in 1904, and he is a very practical man.

If he gave $15,000 to the Roosevelt campaign fund in New York, how much has he given to the Roosevelt campaign fund in other states, and why?—New York World.

Fortunate for the Country.

We believe Mr. Wilson's nomination to be in the highest degree fortunate for the country. It quickens the sluggish currents of trade and enterprise. It does these beneficent things, first, because in the last three months we have cast out so many devils, and second, because a gentleman will be in the White House during the next four years, a man of sanity and balance, a man sincerely desiring the welfare of the American people, a man of sobriety and principle, not a visionary.—New York Times.

RIGHT MAN FOR THE PLACE

Surely No One More Fitting Than George W. Perkins to Be Treasurer of Roosevelt Party.

It is eminently proper that George W. Perkins should be named as treasurer of the Bull Moose party. As a friend of the plain people Mr. Perkins has succeeded in amassing a huge fortune. Incidentally, and only incidentally, he has profited quite handsomely in the division of the $63,000,000 which was the financial result of the formation of the steel trust.

This gigantic monopoly has nothing to hope for in the election of President Taft, because it was under Mr. Taft's administration that suit was instituted against it. Likewise Mr. Wilson's election would be disastrous.

But Mr. Roosevelt declined, while president, to prosecute the steel trust, and he allowed the trust to gather in its great southern rival, the Tennessee Coal and Iron company. More than this, during his seven years' occupation of the White House, Mr. Roosevelt took no action which looked toward a genuine revision of the tariff.

No wonder that Mr. Perkins is to be the treasurer of the new party. He has already contributed handsomely, and the barrel is still open. It is, however, an imposition upon human credulity to believe that his generosity has no selfish end in view.

Roosevelt's Real Position.

"And oh! my friends! for one thing at least we should be profoundly grateful."

"We are more fortunate than our fathers in that there is not the slightest tinge of sectionalism in the fight we are now waging. The principles for which we stand are as vital for the south as for the north, for the east as for the west."—Theodore Roosevelt at Chicago.

Mr. Perkins never approached this. Where did the money come from which paid the heavy expense of Mr. Roosevelt's pre-convention campaign? What considerations moved Mr. Perkins, archbishop of big business, Dan Hanna, the son of his father, the McCormicks, who represent the Harvester trust, Mr. Perkins represents the steel trust; Ross Flinn, rich through the control of city contracts, to take chief roles in the movement to bring him back to power? As the Roosevelt managers held out crisp new bills before delegates from the Black Belt, how impressive is the proof of the death of sectionalism and the beneficent reign of "the principles for which we stand" over south and north alike?

Day of Reckoning Will Come.

Surely there must be a day of reckoning coming for the Anthracite Coal trust, and it is astonishing that men so intelligent as President Hiser and his colleagues do not seem to see that they are hastening this day by their exactions from the public in forcing up the price of coal at this time. The addition of a quarter of a dollar to the price of anthracite is not such a trifling matter that it will go unresented. Who would have thought a few years ago that the Standard Oil company, the American Tobacco company and other great corporations would ever be brought to terms and forced to dissolve or change their methods? Some day a way will be found by either state or federal authority to bring the anthracite combination to its knees, and for such drastic action it may thank the public sentiment aroused by the imposition of not far from $20,000,000 as an extra tax to make up for the increased wages, which cannot aggregate over $7,000,000 or $8,000,000 at the most, given to the miners under pressure.

Wilson's Qualities.

There is no doubt of the progressiveness of Wilson. He is a man of unquestionable ability, wide study and scholarship, and a talent for administration. He is an uncommonly good speaker, the public sentiment aroused by the imposition of not far from $20,000,000 as an extra tax to make up for the increased wages, which cannot aggregate over $7,000,000 or $8,000,000 at the most, given to the miners under pressure.
